Hiroko Yoshimoto: Biodiversity

Exhibit Sponsored by Union Bank

Biodiversity has a richly organic patternation that abstractly teems with life even as it alludes to environmental disruption. This series of over forty paintings in oil and in watercolor was born out of the artist's free-form sketches done in Tokyo in 2012 while forced to recoup indoors. The beautiful imagery on display is thus inspired by organic puddles of diverse micro-organisms and by the need to protect this first link in Life's rich chain to avoid devastating consequences.
